WOMEN USED AS LURES BY DRY AGENTS

SPIDER AND THE FLY SCHEME USED TO ENSNARE VICTIMS

Governor to Probe Booze Trap In Which Assistant State Prohibition Director S. A. Propst Tried to Get Marshal Nutt of Westerville, But Failed to Put It Across—Attorney General Crabbe Has Doubt As to the Propriety of Using Women to Entrap Violators.

One and possibly two investigations of reports that Deputy Prohibition Commissioner S. A. Propst hired women to "induce" persons to violate the dry laws, among them one said to be a former prisoner of the Ohio reformatory for women, will be undertaken.

Governor Donahey will conduct one of the probes, he said, and Prohibition Commissioner B. F. McDonald is expected to conduct the other.

A report of the alleged frameup of Marshal Harry Nutt of Westerville, Thursday, February 4, by Propst and a woman, were laid before the governor Thursday.

In the Westerville case Propst, several other state prohibition agents and Mrs. Ruth Farrell took part.

According to those close to the situation, there have been differences between City Manager L. G. Whitney of Westerville and Marshal Nutt, about law enforcement, Whitney asserting Westerville was "wide open" to gambling and illegal liquor traffic.

Whitney blamed this alleged condition on Marshal Nutt and appealed to Sheriff Gump and the state prohibition forces. The sheriff's office turned its complaints over to the state men.

Mrs. Farrell is said to have volunteered to make a date with Nutt to obtain liquor, so prohibition agents could arrest him.

Tuesday, February 2, Mrs. Farrell met Nutt in Westerville and is said to have gone with him "to an upper floor" of a building there, remaining but a short time. She is said to have told state agents that he had no liquor then and she told him "No liquor; no party."

At that time he is said to have told Mrs. Farrell that a friend of his was brewing some liquor, which would be ready Thursday, February 4, and to come back then. She returned that day and shortly after she joined Nutt prohibition agents followed, raided rooms in which they were found, but obtained no liquor.

Mrs. Farrell denied there was any trap laid for Marshal Nutt, but admitted she was employed by the state prohibition department.

Records of the state auditor show that Mrs. Farrell was paid $30 on a prohibition department voucher for services from February 1 to 6.

Other vouchers to women in 1926 include: Sue Woodruff, Columbus, $50 January 22 to 31, and Goldie Hallam Columbus, $30 February 1 to 6.

Mrs. Farrell denied Thursday that she had "framed" Marshal Nutt, but admitted she was employed by the prohibition department.

"I had a date with Marshal Nutt," she said. "I went to Westerville on a street car to meet him. Evidently the prohibition officers who were taking Deputy Propst to his home in Westerville saw us meet and followed us. I never told anyone in the department that I was going to meet Nutt."

Attorney General Crabbe expressed "grave doubt" as to the legality of using women to entrap suspects in prearranged raids.

"If the prohibition department is employing women of a doubtful character to entrap violators by inducing and assisting them to violate the law, it is my belief that the department is infringing on the law," Attorney General Crabbe said.

Regarding conditions in Westerville City Manager L. G. Whitney said:

"Gambling and bootlegging have been going on for quite a while. I have not been able to stop them. They are no worse now, they are just better known. I have not been able to get the local police to help in the cleanup. But I am determined to clean this place up and I will bring in outside forces to do it, if necessary. The ball is rolling now."

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The engagement of Mrs. Russie Morgan and Mr. Henry Wetzel has been announced in Columbus. The wedding will take place in March. Mrs. Morgan will be better remembered here as Russie Kolterman, daughter of Mrs. Victoria M. Schoeller now residing at 344½ South High street, Columbus.

Mr. Lee Edward Southers of Greenfield, and Miss Gay Jolly, of New Holland, were married Thursday evening at 4 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage in this city by Rev. A. H. Beardsley.

MORTGAGED EARNINGS.

According to C. I. Hill of the Babson statistical organization, American business today is facing a mortgage on the purchasing power of the country to the extent of $5,000,000,000, as a result of the installment or "pay-as-you-earn" plan of business.

Addressing the National Retail Drygoods association at New York Mr. Hill declared: "After a careful study of the situation, our organization believes that the trend of installment selling as it exists today is fundamentally unsound and in violation of the primary rules and ethics of good business and sound and sane living."

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Bellevue — While authorities searched for a fourth man who leaped into a stolen automobile and escaped, Charles St. Claire, 25; Jack Malone, 27 and Eddie Parker, 24 all of Toledo, were in the county jail here today suspected of burglarizing a hardware store at DeGraff Wednesday night.

Norwalk — With orders to shoot to kill if necessary police throught the state today were searching for James and Leonard Lyons, youthful brothers one of whom shot and killed Frank E. McGrath, special agent for the American Railway Express company, when McGrath sought to arrest them at Havana, near here Thursday.

Columbus — The state wide Peace Declaration contest for high school students, was heartily endorsed Friday by Vernon M. Rieget, state director of education. He said he would recommend that high schools in the state give credit in English work to pupils participating in the contest, being organized by the Ohio Council of Churches.

Cambridge — Ernal Larson, 17, of near here, is in the Cambridge hospital in a critical condition as the result of two bullet wounds in his body inflicted by his father, Bert Larson, when the latter mistook his son for a robber. The shooting occurred at the Larson home where a watch was being kept for a highwayman who had held up and robbed Ernal of $9.10 Wednesday afternoon.

Cincinnati — Elizabeth Schweder, pretty 17 year old German miss whose mysterious disappearance six days ago baffled police, returned to her home Thursday, gasped that "she was not married," and fainted.

The girl was driven to her home by Forest Hull, a garage proprietor and another woman. As Curtis Schweder Elizabeth's brother, dashed for the car, Hull sped away.

"It's all my fault," Elizabeth cried hysterically when revived. The girl then mumbled incoherently.

THE SICK.

Miss Genevieve Sensenbrenner is ill of tonsillitis at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sensenbrenner, of East Mound street.

SAFE CRACKED AND BURGLARS MADE ESCAPE

Stevenson's Furniture Store Entered and $121 Taken —Carried Insurance.

The safe in the furniture store of H. G. Stevenson, West Main street was burglarized some time during the night and $121 was taken from the cash drawer.

It is thought that the store must have been entered before two o'clock for snow began to fall about that time and there are no signs of footprints in the snow. Iron workers' tools, such as hammers and cold chisels were found on the floor of the office near the safe where the marauders did their work.

Entrance was effected thru a window in the shop in the rear of the store.

After entering the store room they made their way to the office, knocked off the knob to the combination, turned the tumblers and bolts and an easy entrance was made to the strong box, which was pried open, as were also two other drawers in the safe. Checks and papers were not disturbed.

Mr. Stevenson carried burglary insurance in the Boyle & Johnson agency and his loss is fully covered by insurance.

The burglary was discovered by Daniel Ryan when he opened the store this morning at 7:30 o'clock. The police and sheriff were notified at once and an effort will be made to photograph the safe door for finger marks, in order to trace the burglars, if possible.

A THIEVES' NIGHT

With the heavy rain storm raging followed by a norther, gave thieves ample time Thursday night to get in their work as nobody was out. A motometer was stolen from Mrs. H. B. Given's car which was parked in front of the Grand opera house. The car was insured against burglary in the Boyle & Johnson agency.

The car of Earl Stout, parked in front of the Memorial hall, was separated from a motometer, tools and an army blanket. The police have no clue to the thieves.

OPERATION OF BAXTER BILL IS WATCHED

Thoro Going Test is Being Made in Dayton Under Mayor A. C. McDonald.

Operation of the recently enacted Baxter bill for the relief of the tax-paying districts of the state will be watched with much interest by the officials of every city in the state and students of government, with especial attention focussed on Dayton, which, under its new mayor, Allen C. McDonald, who was a member of the house of representatives when he was chosen mayor, has adopted a program of rigid economy in taxation and a minimum expenditure of public funds.

The passage of the Baxter bill will enable the city of Dayton to fund a deficit of approximately $150,000 which existed on December 31, (before the new administration took charge) over a period of five years, and prevent an increase in taxes or assessments on property there.

The Baxter bill, it is expected, will have a thoro-going test under Mr. McDonald's administration, because of his intimate knowledge of legislation and taxation. As a member of the house of representatives for many years, Mr. McDonald made a scientific study of taxation. He attended the joint meeting of the taxation committees of the two houses in Columbus January 8, with the object of having the bill whipped into shape so as to take care of conditions in Dayton and Montgomery county. He was probably the only municipal or local officer from any section of the state in attendance at the meeting.

With the aid of the Baxter bill Dayton has entered upon a pay-as-you-go plan. Dayton has a non-partisan commission form of government with a city manager. Altho Mr. McDonald is a Republican, the city government is being administered without regard to political questions. His selection as mayor was the result of his having received the largest vote on the non-partisan ticket in the municipal election.

"The business affairs of the city of Dayton are to be conducted just as a business corporation conducts its affairs," the commission has declared.

The bill for the relief of the tax paying districts was introduced in the legislature by Representative Baxter of Lima. Conditions similar to those in Dayton, however, with the wide experience of its new mayor, is expected to provide an unusually favorable background for the operation of the law and it is believed that the merits of the measure will be fully demonstrated. Other cities will no doubt profit by Dayton's experience. Later on, it is believed, all the cities of the state will send representatives to a conference at which will be discussed the operations of the Baxter act.

AMATEUR TRAP SHOOTING ASSN.

Will Stage Midwinter Shoot At Vandalia, Ohio, February 22 and 23.

Troopshooters from this section of the country will be glad to learn that the officers of the famous Central Ohio Trapshooters League are going to stage a Midwinter shoot, Monday and Tuesday, February 22nd and 23rd. This shoot will be held on the grounds of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, Vandalia, Ohio.

Midwinter shoots are held in different sections of the country each year. Ohio, the best trapshooting state in America has never held a Midwinter competition, the result being, the shooters from the Buckeye and neighboring states have to travel far at this time of the year to participate in their favorite sport.

The officers of the Central Ohio League have arranged a wonderful program. Monday, February 22nd, the feature of the program will be 100-16 yard targets and 25 pair of doubles. The 100 bird race will be known as the Midwinter Championship and will be shot classification system. Twelve beautiful trophies will be given away in this contest. The C. O. T. L. Midwinter Doubles Championship will be shot in the afternoon. This should prove to be a thriller. Three fine trophies will be given away to the three best twin busters.

Tuesday, February 23rd, will be featured by the famous C. O. T. L. Midwinter Handicap contest, 100 targets, 16 to 23 yard rise. Every shooter on the grounds will have an equal chance in this race. A beautiful trophy will be given to the high gun of each yardage, eight trophies in all. Besides the trophies $100.00 will be guaranteed the winner of this event, $50.00 to the second place and $25.00 to the third.

Prior to the Midwinter Handicap race, Tuesday morning, there will be a warm up event of 100 targets. At the conclusion of the tournament an all around trophy will be given to the shooter who makes the high score in the two championship events and the Handicap Race. If we are any judge of programs, we think this to be one of the finest ever put on by a trapshooting body.

SPORT TABLOIDS.

New York.—Ruby Goldstein, East Side lightweight, continued his string of recent victories by scoring a two-round knockout over Billy Pollock in a scheduled six-round go.

Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Clas Thunberg, fleet Finnish skater, bested Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid in the one-third mile event after the American had fallen just before reaching the tape.

New York.—Frank Frisch, Giant infielder, arrived here from the Florida winter baseball season. He has not signed a contract as yet, but intends to see John McGraw today.

Chicago.—Everett Scott, the most consistent shortstop of all time who a few weeks ago was released by the Washington Senators, has been signed by the White Sox. Harry Hooper has been given his unconditional release and Wee Dickie Kerr, has been sold to the San Francisco club.

The Dumb One

A husband telephoned to say that he could not get home to dinner. Late as it was, it would be much later before he had finished his business. "You poor dear," answered his wife sympathetically. "I wonder you can get anything done at all with that jazz band playing in your office."

Early Ireland

There is no certain evidence that Ireland was inhabited during the paleolithic period. It was not until about 600 B. C. that the Golds, the first invaders speaking a Celtic language, set foot in Ireland. Between 200 and 150 B. C. various Celtic and other Brythonic tribes settled in Britain and probably crossed over to Ireland. The earlier history of Ireland is largely legendary. There is a tradition that the first colony arrived in Ireland A. M. 2520, under the leadership of Partholan, who came from middle Greece.

LOANS up to $500

The average credit terms quoted on a commodity sold on the payment plan are always in favor of the seller. For example—if you pay faster than your contract provides, the seller gets the advantage. On the other hand, if you fail to pay as regularly as you should, you run the risk of losing your auto, or furniture, or piano, or sewing machine, or sweeper, or whatever it is, and all the money you have previously paid on it may be charged up against you as rent. Under the City Loan plan, you pay for the exact time you use the money and the cost is reduced with each payment. Thus it can be seen that City Loan credit terms are in favor of the borrower, with every inducement for him to pay back as fast as he can. Failure to pay, for good cause, is always given fair consideration.

SMUGGLING
Of Aliens Flourishing On Canadian Border.

Cleveland, Feb. 18.—(UP.)—Alien smuggling is flourishing along the Canadian border, Federal authorities declared today following the arrest of Anton Jakob, a 22-year-old Roumanian who has confessed he paid $90 to be smuggled into the United States.
Jakob and two women and one other man were landed in Buffalo, N. Y., a week ago, Jakob said. Two agents of what is believed an international alien smuggling ring, were captured, together with the two women and the man. Jakob escaped.
The prisoners refused to divulge operations of the supposed ring. Jakob was traced to the home of his uncle in Mansfield, O., and arrested.

MAKING OF LAWS
In 38 states of the Union the Legislatures last year passed 13,018 different laws. At that they only passed a portion of those submitted. In New York, for instance, a total of 3,186 were put into the hopper, but only 686 of them became laws. In North Carolina, however, the solons made a better batting average. Out of 1,745 measures presented 1,173 were adopted and signed by the Governor. Our national Congress makes its own record. It will probably have 30,000 bills before the roll is complete, and one third of them will be adopted. It is a busy session, indeed, when the British Parliament has 300 measures before it. The Britons depend more upon the Almighty and less upon the legislators for their relief.—Los Angeles Times.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?
"A very difficult question," the President calls the traffic casualties of the time. The figures that he cites—24,000 persons killed in a year upon the streets and highways of the country, and probably more than 500,000 injured. This means that over a period of the same length as our participation in the world war Americans are losing three-fourths as many lives on streets and roads as they lost to German bullets, and running up in addition a non-fatal casualty list thrice as great as they did abroad.
"The president has asked all the governors to appoint delegates to a national safety convention to assemble in March. While we know of no formula to meet the situation he has outlined the conference may write history by focusing public attention on the national aspects of a problem made up of a multitude of incidents at street corners and cross roads. Many communities are at work seeking and applying remedies.
The figures set forth in this article certainly ought to be a very convincing argument for

When Anybody Buys an Automobile

Whoever you are, wherever you are, you are immediately and definitely benefited when anybody buys an automobile. For the owner of that car earns more money, spends more money, does more work, enjoys life more, and means more to himself and his community than he did before. And the man who buys the car is benefited more than anyone else.

As we see it, this house is more than a purveyor of good automobiles—it is a local institution contributing to the happiness and prosperity of the community. We'd like to tell you more about it; drop in any time.

 x HARTMAN THEATER. x
 x x x x x x x x x

The biggest thrill of many seasons in the American theater was provided late in the summer of 1924 when "What Price Glory" burst on Broadway with a report which has echoed across the continent. "What Price Glory" is the only play about the war of which men who have been in the thick of it say, "This is it!" "What Price Glory" comes to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for one week beginning Monday February 22, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

This picture of the war is revealed almost unconsciously by its authors. Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson never planned to make history with their play. Their modest intent was to tell the story—a grinning comedy, in truth—a battle between two hardboiled Marines for the favors of a peasant girl in a shell-torn corner of France.

But so alive, throbbing and hard-fisted are those characters, so vivid are the scenes, that those who have yearned to know how the war looked and felt and tasted come away from "What Price Glory" with the conviction that they now know something of the war as these men know it. Gargantuan figures they are, Flagg and Quirt. Beasts, men and gods—something of each. To know them is to see life magnified, made more beautiful, more horrible, more devilish and more divine than we, in our cramped lives, can hope to live it.

Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt, as impersonated by Louis Wolheim and William Boyd, are unforgettable. Indeed the whole company of Marines, French peasants, staff officers and camp followers is so perfectly cast that the play offers a cross section of the French front seen thru the eyes of a laughter-loving American.

"What Price Glory" was born of the experiences of Laurence Stallings on the battle fields of France. Its characters and incidents are lifted from life. Veterans of the Marine corps visit the play again and again to greet with cheers of laughter and reminiscent chuckles the whole string of characters and incidents of the story.

To the men who were over there, "What Price Glory" will recall the most acute moments of their lives. To the millions of others it has the incalculable value of satisfying a hunger to know what the World war really meant. Here it is—the grinning, brutal, heroic truth.

See it! Then—you'll know.

MANY ALIENS IN U. S. ILLEGALLYLaw, if Enforced, Would Deport Many Now Established in American Life.

Washington.—If the present immigration law should be enforced strictly 2,000,000 people of foreign birth now living in the United States would be deported. This discovery is one of several startling things that have come to the attention of Harry E. Hull, the new commissioner general of immigration, since he took office on May 16. Within a very few weeks Commissioner Hull has found that the immigration service of the United States has before it one of the hardest sets of problems confronting any branch of the federal government.

Many of the 2,000,000 aliens who are here without legal right have taken root in the economic life of the country and established themselves as useful members of their communities. Some of them have been in America for twenty years or longer. The letter of the law would send them away because they would be unable, if called upon, to show satisfactory proof that they entered the country in the manner specified by rule. Many of them think that they did so enter, but the immigration authorities run across people every day who lack the proof, and officialdom is required continually to answer the baffling question of what to do with them.

No Right to Return.

Some of these questionable residents have risen to be important business men; some have won prominence in other ways. Only the other day a man classed as a "big man" in the business circles of an Eastern city sought permission to go abroad and return. He had been in the country about fifteen years. Investigation disclosed that, like many another newcomer, he had changed his occupation after getting here. He came on a visit and then went into business. To his astonishment he found himself virtually a man without a country when a re-entry certificate was withheld from him.

Many other cases of the sort crop up daily at Washington; cases of people who came here as students or tourists and afterward changed their status without duly notifying the authorities—a thing strictly against the law. A large part of the doubtful 2,000,000 drifted across the Canadian border and grew up here. Among them are many people from our first-cousin countries of Great Britain and Ireland; they are established in great numbers in upper New York state and in New England. They have dwelt so long in their adopted land that they have become well absorbed and are regarded by their neighbors as bona-fide citizens.

They regard themselves in that light, indeed, but when they try to prove their right to be so looked upon they find that they have failed to provide themselves with proper records, or that they have lost what records they had. If they leave the country they must run the risk of returning outside the ever-full quotas from their native lands and of being rejected at the gate. Consuls in Europe, who have authority over the issuing of passports, have learned from experience to be slow in granting papers in excess of the quotas and without the necessary certificates brought by the applicants from this side of the ocean.

Thousands Here Illegally.

This problem of the 2,000,000 finds its origin in past practices. The first restriction law of 1921 reversed entirely the country's open-door policy in immigration. Naturally this about face created a situation that could not be foreseen. The problem involves more people than any other now before the immigration service, and around it most of the other problems of the service revolve in some way.

According to the 1920 census the number of aliens in the United States over twenty-one years of age then was 4,522,350. The number of aliens under twenty-one years of age was 876,246. The number of aliens over twenty-one years of age who had taken out first papers was 1,198,588. The number under twenty-one who had taken out first papers was 24,902.

The total foreign-born population of the United States was 13,920,692. Of the foregoing those naturalized were 6,493,088. A total of 1,223,400 have declared their intention to become citizens, and all told those who are still aliens are 5,398,605. A total of 805,506 may or may not have been declarants. The estimate of 2,000,000 unable to prove their entry was made by officials after examining the manner in which records have been presented.

The practice of the immigration authorities when an application to go abroad is made is to ask that the applicant prove legal entry. When he is unable to do so the officials are unable to certify thereto and to give him the permit to re-enter. If he goes abroad it is at the great risk of staying there.

The situation has been found to work hardships, one of the worst being the separating of families. Some men have gone abroad thinking the necessary card would follow them. Meanwhile the bureau has been unable, after searching the records, to discover the proof and the card has been held up.

AMUSEMENTS

New York—1850, the day of the horseless carriage, brownstone front and cobble stone street—that's the scene of the Sidney Olcott-Paramount production, "Not So Long Ago," at the Met theater.

"Not So Long Ago" is a captivating love story of city life in its most picturesque and interesting period—a living document of old New York filed with heart throbs and quaint charm, adapted for the screen by Violet Clark from the Broadway stage hit of the same name by Arthur Richman.

Betty Bronson and Ricardo Cortez are featured in the principal roles. In all justice to Betty Dover (Miss Bronson), it might be said here that her fibbing is prompted by an imaginative mind handed down to her by an inventive father.

Employed as a seamstress in the home of the wealthy Ballards, Betty soon imagines that the scion of the house, Billy (Cortez) is desperately in love with her. With this love situation as a basis, all kinds of trouble break loose for the romantic and dreamy Betty. Social cast and money play important parts in trying to wreck the girl's ambitions, but she triumphs in the end.

"Not So Long Ago" has been screened with a fine understanding of the styles and customs of the period.
You'll long remember the old-fashioned fire engine, the old-fashioned ball scene, the "bicycle for two," the horseless carriage." Betty Bronson's characterization, scenes of the old
New York, the love romance, the fight between Cortez and Laurance Wheat who heads the supporting cast, the snobbish mother,—and a scene that has everything—comedy, pathos, thrills and a real climax. Briefly the situation is this: Larry Wheat makes a wager that he can beat the horseless carriage down Fifth avenue. If he wins, Betty Bronson has promised to marry him. The street is roped off and the race starts. Just as the horseless carriage is about to cross the finish line a winner, the boiler explodes and with it apparently are shattered all of Betty's father's hopes for success. Subsequent events, however, prove otherwise.

Made by the director of "Little Old New York," "Not So Long Ago," is way up and beyond anything he's ever done before.

Other big names in the strong supporting cast are Edwards Davis, Julia Swayne Gordon, Dan Crimmins, as inventor and Jacqueline Gadson.

Check on Oratory

At a recent conference a novel plan was adopted for restricting the length of speeches according to their interest.
Each of the delegates was armed with a large card, red on one side, white on the other. After each speech had been going for some minutes delegates would begin to hold up their cards, red side toward the chairman. This was a sign that they were bored with the speech. Others who wished to hear more would turn the white side toward the chairman, who was thus able to see at a glance whether the audience wanted the speech to continue or not.

When the number of red cards exceeded the number of white cards he would tactfully intimate to the speaker that time was up.

When Red Raspberry
Plants Are Planted

Roots Should Be Extended
Along the Rows.

The red raspberry develops new plants from its roots, which extend horizontally in all directions from the parent plant only a few inches below the surface of the ground. When a garden tool or an insect breaks or injuries these roots they promptly send up new shoots which soon develop into new plants.

If these are wanted for a new bed
they may be dug up and transplanted; if not, they should be pulled up rather than cut off. Pulling generally breaks the shoot's connection with the horizontal root and lessens the likelihood of new plants at that point. Cutting leaves part of the shoot in the soil and soon new shoots develop from the buds on it.

When red raspberry plants are planted their roots should be extended in the direction of the rows so the new shoots that develop may be more or less in line. As new plants appear it is an advantage to pull up the puny ones in the row and all others out of the line, unless these are needed for transplanting. This helps to make cultivation easier, the fruit larger and of finer quality.

Blackcap and purple raspberries do not develop new plants by this method, but by making the tips of their young shoots and branches bend to the ground and take root. When once planted new stems develop in a very limited space around the stem of the original plant set. They never give trouble with suckers.

To prevent their forming new plants the tips of the new shoots need only be prevented from taking root during late summer and fall.—M. G. Kains, in the Country Gentleman.

Paying Stand of Clover
Gained by Broadcasting

A good stand of clover may usually be obtained on land that is not deficient in lime by broadcasting the seed in March when the ground is honeycombed by freezing. If the seed is sown later when it will not be covered by freezing, it is safest to cover it by a very light harrowing.

In seeding tests at the Ohio station the seven-year average yield of clover seeded about March 18 when the ground was honeycombed was 1.61 tons of hay per acre. Clover seeded in the latter part of April when the ground was in good working condition, but without covering the seed gave an average yield of 1.58 tons per acre; half the amount of seed drilled in with a grass seed drill on the same dates gave 1.63 tons; the smaller amount of seed broadcast and covered by a light harrowing gave 1.58 tons.

The station agronomists do not recommend sowing less than 8 to 11 pounds of clover seed per acre under the best of conditions for covering the seed and on limed or limestone soil.

Use of Milk Machine Is
Extending Very Rapidly

The use of milking machines is extending rapidly. Sanitation is a consideration of first importance in their employment. They must be thoroughly washed and sterilized if a clean milk of low bacterial count is to be produced. Recent trials have shown the hot-water treatment to be as satisfactory as any. The life of good quality rubber is not materially shortened by this method. After each milking, the machine is thoroughly washed and the teat cups and rubber tubing are placed in clean, cold water until just before the next milking, when they are placed in hot water 160 degrees to 165 degrees Fahrenheit and then allowed to cool.

Skunk Is a Particular
Enemy of the Honeybee

If the trappers should entirely exterminate the tribe of skunks this winter, there would be no regret among beekeepers. The skunk is a particular enemy of bees, because he has cultivated his appetite for both bees and honey. During the night the skunk will creep quietly to the beehive and tap on the front of it with his paw until the bees come crawling out. As they come out the skunk gathers them in with his paw and his tongue, apparently regarding their stingers as only a delightful addition to the flavor.

FARM NOTES

Carpenter work on the farm always goes better with good tools.

One gopher is capable of throwing up two hundred or more mounds during six weeks.

The deeper and rougher the kernel the lower its degree of maturity; the higher its moisture content the greater the injury by freezes.

Clover or alfalfa hay once a day, corn fodder at noon, and bean pods at night, make an excellent roughage ration for breeding ewes during the winter season.

Winter is here and farm animals should be kept comfortable—that is, not hungry or cold or excited, or standing in an uncomfortable position or sleeping in an uncomfortable bed.

FOX HUNTERS
STAGE CHASE
NEXT MONDAY

Best Dogs Will be Turned Loose in Scioto Valley
East of Yellowbud.

The Fox Hunters of South central Ohio will turn their best dogs into the chase that is scheduled to start at 9:30 o'clock February 22, in the Scioto Valley just east of Yellowbud over a range of 2500 acres that is clear of fences and a spot that is ideal for the sport.

There will be over 50 dogs turned into the chase, entered from five or six counties.

The public is invited to attend, as there are many good places where the chase can be seen.

Dinner will be served by the ladies of Yellowbud church at the M. W. A.,

FATAL ENDING
OF MARDI GRAS

New Orleans, La., Feb. 17.— (UP.)—Three deaths, 100 persons treated for injuries sustained in accidents and fights and 400 arrests, brought the Mardi Gras festival to a noisy conclusion police records revealed today.

Night recorder's court continued in session until early morning adjourning for breakfast, after disposing of a majority of the drunk and disorderly cases.

The three dead are negroes;
one a bandit who was shot to death by police. Two white men, Charles Oberline, a participant in the Zulu King's pageant and Wm. N. Johnson, a visitor of Hazelhurst, Miss., were stabbed by drunken negroes.

Surgeons Make Record
in Heart Treatment

In one of London's morning newspapers a surgeon tells of an operation performed for the first time on the human heart. The patient, a young girl, had suffered for four years from mitral stenosis, or the gradual closing of one of the four valves of the heart. As treatment seemed of no avail, it was decided that an operation was necessary. A large flap of skin and muscle over the girl's heart was laid back and the ribs over the cardiac area were removed. The pericardium, or sac containing the heart, was then exposed to view, and the heart itself could be seen pulsating at the rate of 128 beats to the minute. The sac was opened, an incision was made in the auricle (one of the four chambers of the heart) and the gloved finger of the surgeon was inserted as a plug to stop the immediate fountain of blood. After examination it was decided not to cut the valve as had been intended but merely to dilate it with the finger. This the surgeon did slowly and with infinite care and without mishap. The pericardium closed, the ribs, muscles and the skin were replaced layer by layer. During it all the heart maintained a nearly normal pulsation, which became wholly normal when the chest was closed. The patient made a speedy recovery and when last heard of was perfectly well.

Official Fog Signals

Under the control of the United States government there are about 100,000 fog signals, of which 3,000 are lighted. They include gongs, bells, whistles of compressed air, trumpets, horns and flashlights.
Gongs have been found the least effective so far as concerns the carrying qualities of sound instruments, bells being heard much farther under all circumstances.

PLAN TO HARNESS TIDE FOR POWER

American Engineers Study Feasibility of Bay of Fundy Project.

St. John, N. B.—Much interest has been aroused throughout the Canadian maritime provinces, particularly in New Brunswick, by the proposed project to generate between 500,000 and 750,000 electrical horse power by harnessing the famous tides of the Bay of Fundy in two inlets near Eastport, Me. American hydraulic engineers investigating the feasibility of the project, pronounced it entirely practical from an engineering standpoint, adding that it presented one of the most promising developments in the electrical world in a decade.

The project is being sponsored by Dexter P. Cooper, American capitalist, who spent several weeks here recently in its interest. Mr. Cooper explained to members of the New Brunswick government at the time, that as soon as authority to begin with construction was obtained from Maine, application to proceed with the work would be made to the provincial and Dominion governments, as well as to the international joint waterways commission. Titles to certain lands on the New Brunswick side of the St. Croix river already have been searched for at the crown lands office in Fredericton, the provincial capital. A state-wide referendum is to be taken in Maine to decide whether the sale of power will be permitted outside the state, provided the project materializes.

Fix Cost at $75,000,000.

The cost of harnessing the tides, Mr. Cooper estimates at $75,000,000, the financing of which has already been assured. It would require at least five years before actual power could be supplied after the work was started, Mr. Cooper said. When completed, however, a maximum of 750,000 horse power could be produced annually, enough and to spare for the entire New England states. Electric power at hitherto unheard-of rates would be available all over the provinces, he declared, and, according to engineers, could be transmitted as far west as Boston, Mass.

The Bay of Fundy is noted for having the highest and strongest tides in the world. These are caused by the peculiar submarine topography and the wedge shape of the adjacent shores. At St. John the tides rise 25 feet, causing on the lower St. John river the only natural phenomenon of its kind in existence, a reversible waterfall; that is to say, when the tide is coming in, the falls, which are some forty feet high, "drop" upstream, and when the tide is going out they "drop" downstream. At the end of the Bay of Fundy, between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the tide is the highest on earth, at slack water measuring between 60 and 70 feet. At Moncton, on Chignecto bay, the incoming tide travels with such great velocity that it attains a "bore" of six feet.

Coast Vessels' Graveyard.

Its fierce tides and storms, treacherous reefs and shoals, steep rocky coast and frequent heavy fogs make the Bay of Fundy one of the most perilous passages known to mariners. Yearly, dozens of coasting vessels and fishing schooners bound for the Grand Banks of Newfoundland are lost here. The early French explorers and missionaries have described its fury and turbulence when in tempest, and it was known to be the bane of the simple Acadian peasants who peopled its pleasant shores some two centuries ago. Tales of havoc wrought by its great winds and tide-rips still live in the legendary lore of the descendants of the Micmac and Maliseet Indians found throughout this part of Canada today.

Plans and specifications for utilizing the potential power of the Fundy tides have been completed. The two inlets which have been selected are known as Passamaquoddy bay and Cobscook bay. The first is designated as the upper pool and the second as the lower pool. Both inlets are V-shaped, with their narrow necks, almost stopped by small island groups, meeting at Eastport.

At the mouth of the upper pool, which contains about 100 square miles of water, the plans call for the erection of a sea wall 4,000 feet long and 70 feet high. The wall is to be provided with 33 sluice gates. The mouth of the lower pool, containing 50 square miles of water, is to be closed by a similar gate, 2,400 feet long.

Between the two pools a separating wall 3,000 feet in length will be built on which power plants are to be located.

Theory of Operation.

The theory is this: The gates of the upper pool are to be opened only during flood tides, while the gates of the lower pool are to be opened only during ebb tides. This, according to the plans, will keep a supply of water in the upper pool, while the lower pool will be constantly emptied. The fall of the water from the upper pool through the turbines into the lower pool will create a continuous downfall regardless of whether the tides are falling or rising.

Several years ago when the idea of harnessing the tides was first promulgated, it was received with derision. To the lay mind it appeared altogether too visionary. The magnitude of the project as then set down was over

WASHINGTON SPECIALS

Washington, Feb. 18.—(UP.)—Representative Swing, California, today asked the state department to negotiate a treaty with Mexico establishing a fifty mile zone along the border in Mexico in which all saloons and other questionable resorts will be prohibited. Swing also asked Secretary Kellogg if it would be possible to close the Mexican border during certain hours of the night. He was referred to the treasury department on this proposal.

The Senate today asked the United States tariff commission to investigate advisability of raising the tariff on cream and milk. A resolution carrying the suggestion introduced by Senator Lenroot, Wis., Republican, was adopted without objection. The commission has been investigating butter costs for the last two years and the new investigation would be conducted in connection with the old one.

The war department's inquiry into alleged "disloyalty" of air service officers ended today with a decision to reprimand Major H. H. Arnold and Major H. A. Darque, of air service headquarters here for alleged attempts to influence legislation before conference in a manner objectionable to the department. Capt. John Montgomery, reserve officer, was found to be chiefly responsible for the objectionable activities, but no action is contemplated against him because he is not on active duty. Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of air service, who conducted the investigation on orders of Secy. of War Davis, denied in a formal statement that the inquiry was aimed indirectly against him because of department displeasure over his congressional testimony favoring a separate air corps.

THEN AND NOW

The old-fashioned idea was that everyone ought to open his windows wide in the morning to air the room in which he had been sleeping, and young housewives were taught the importance of a thorough airing of their houses every morning. Now, of course, the thing we do when we get up in the morning is to close the windows that have been open in our bedrooms all night. The open bedroom windows usually manage to air the entire house and to cool it so that the first thing we think of in the morning is to try and get the house back to a comfortable temperature. In the houses of well-bred people even there used to be a staleness about the atmosphere that is unknown in any house, save those of the most ignorant people nowadays.

Topsy-Turvy

Eleanor, age three, and her older sister went to spend the night with a small cousin. They romped and played through the evening, and, before they had hardly begun, bedtime came. The fun of all sleeping in the same bed, however, held an attraction. The bed was not wide enough for all three to lie in it, so aunt tucked them in all lying the other way—crosswise. Next day Eleanor's mother came and at once was told of the great experience. "Oh, mother," said Eleanor, "we slept wrong side out last night."

Printed Silk Is Used for Two-Piece Frock

This stunning two-piece frock is made of printed silk, with plaited skirt and a belt with a buckle. It can be worn with high or low neck.

Cameo Pins, Jet Dinner Rings, Pearl Necklaces

Cameo pins in antique jeweled settings and frames emphasize the vogue for the ornate and elaborate in jewelry. When a small cameo is used, the frame is rather large and shows to advantage in vari-colored stones. In the large cameo pins the frames are narrow and usually dotted with stones of a single color. All sorts of queer shapes with fancy curves and oddly cut-off corners are exploited as well as the conventional oval and round shapes.

Jet dinner rings in silver and white gold seem to be replacing those of onyx. They may now be had either in prong or bordered settings. A border of tiny rhinestones by contrast enhances the shiny jet center stone, whereas inlaid cameo designs furnish the detail for those with prong settings.

A new version of the pearl necklace may be seen in a long open strand, made up of double sections of graduated pearls. These are joined together by a large baroque pearl. Both of the loose ends of these necklaces are finished with pendants of one, two or even three separate strands of finer pearls, interspersed with graduated baroque pearls and a similar pearl drop. These necklaces may be worn tied in knot fashion in front, wound about the neck or looped with the ends hanging at the back.

Oriental Crepes, Silks for Tailored Lingerie

The oriental silks and the crepes of both French and American make are particularly suitable for the smart "tailored" lingerie. Night dresses of this type are cut as severely plain as a mandarin coat, with square neck, short sleeves or no sleeves, and a band stitched flat along the edge. Slips of these firm Chinese silks are of inexpressible comfort and may be worn with many different gowns and tunic frocks, a protection to the undermost garments and a foundation for the dress. They are even more successful for pajamas, and some of the most chic little night "suits"—jacket and trousers—are shown in these imported eastern silks, in plain colors and in figures. The colors are possibilities for artistic design and afford many charming variants, some of them very picturesque. A silk of one color is trimmed with flat bands of another and lovely bits of oriental needlework are introduced. The opportunity to elaborate these suits and separate garments is practically without limit.

New Cottons and Silk Muslins on Spring Card

As the styles for southern resort wear and the early spring styles are brought out, some delightful models are shown in new cottons and silk muslins. There are pretty stripes, checks and open "basket" weaves and fancy patterns of the weight of mousseline-de-soie. Some of the prominent shops on this side are reviving interest in the fresh, dainty Irish dainties. A quaint, inviting "nightie" of white Irish dainty in a small check is trimmed with Irish lace run with lavender taffeta ribbon. Some sweet little step-ins are made of square mesh open-check muslin, of silk and cotton, in a pale shade of apricot, trimmed with yellow valenciennes lace. In these sheer materials many beautiful colors are shown, some in delicate flower and fruit shades. Peach, apricot, cyclamen green, tangerine, saffron and Chinese blue are some of the popular tints.

Beaded Bags

Few women set out for the land of the royal, and the itching palms, located south of the frost belt, without purchasing one of the new large bags made of tiny beads. These bags are as soft and flexible as silk itself and are developed in charming color designs.

YOUNGSTERS OF PIG CLUB ENTERTAINED

Sixty Girls and Boys Were Guests of Rotary Club—
Dr. Benson, the Speaker.

One of the most interesting sessions in the history of the Circleville Rotary club was that of Thursday noon when the members entertained to dinner sixty boys and girls of the county who had joined the various Pig clubs and who had exhibited their pigs at the Pumpkin Show last fall.

The Rotarians have taken a lively interest in the girls and boys and their work and the different members visited many of the youngsters while the process of raising of the pigs was being promoted. The result was a fine showing at the annual Pumpkin Show and in order to show their appreciation they were banqueted in the social rooms of the First Methodist Episcopal church. The menu was slow, roast beef, mashed potatoes, gravy, hot rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake. The dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of the church.

Sixty girls and boys, the Rotarians and other guests, a total of 131, thoroughly enjoyed the meal and the association and all felt amply repaid for any expenditures of time and money in the satisfaction that came to them thru the consciousness of the performance of a worthy deed.

The affair was in charge of C. R. Barnhart, chairman of Boys' work and the welcome address was delivered by Judge E. A. Brown, who expressed the pleasure of the club in being honored by having their youthful friends as guests.

The speaker of the day was Rev. John G. Benson, superintendent of the White Cross hospital, Columbus, whose address was wholesome, entertaining and instructive.

Dr. Benson is a forceful speaker, never at a loss for the proper words and his talk abounded in significant truths. He agreed that it is a commendable thing to raise thoroughbred pigs, cows, horses, etc., but emphasized the fact that it is vastly more important that boys and girls be reared in the right way, that they be taught the value of clean bodies, clean minds and lofty ideals.

As President Neuding said, Dr. Benson not only gave a splendid talk to the girls and boys, but there was much in it for the benefit and profit of those of more mature years.

The music for the occasion was furnished by the Blenn Bales orchestra composed of himself, Ralph Barnhart, Reber Bell, Dorwin Dumm and Mrs. Annette Conyers.

The girls and boys, sixty in number who were entertained at the dinner were as follows:

WOMEN USED AS LURES BY DRY AGENTS

SPIDER AND THE FLY SCHEME USED TO ENSNARE VICTIMS

Governor to Probe Booze Trap In Which Assistant State Prohibition Director S. A. Propst Tried to Get Marshal Nutt of Westerville, But Failed to Put It Across—Attorney General Crabbe Has Doubt As to the Propriety of Using Women to Entrap Violators.

One and possibly two investigations of reports that Deputy Prohibition Commissioner S. A. Propst hired women to "induce" persons to violate the dry laws, among them one said to be a former prisoner of the Ohio reformatory for women, will be undertaken.

Governor Donahey will conduct one of the probes, he said, and Prohibition Commissioner B. F. McDonald is expected to conduct the other.

A report of the alleged frameup of Marshal Harry Nutt of Westerville, Thursday, February 4, by Propst and a woman, were laid before the governor Thursday.

In the Westerville case Propst, several other state prohibition agents and Mrs. Ruth Farrell took part.

According to those close to the situation, there have been differences between City Manager L. G. Whitney of Westerville and Marshal Nutt, about law enforcement, Whitney asserting Westerville was "wide open" to gambling and illegal liquor traffic.

Whitney blamed this alleged condition on Marshal Nutt and appealed to Sheriff Gump and the state prohibition forces. The sheriff's office turned its complaints over to the state men.

Mrs. Farrell is said to have volunteered to make a date with Nutt to obtain liquor, so prohibition agents could arrest him.

Tuesday, February 2, Mrs. Farrell met Nutt in Westerville and is said to have gone with him "to an upper floor" of a building there, remaining but a short time. She is said to have told state agents that he had no liquor then and she told him "No liquor; no party."

At that time he is said to have told Mrs. Farrell that a friend of his was brewing some liquor, which would be ready Thursday, February 4, and to come back then. She returned that day and shortly after she joined Nutt prohibition agents followed, raided rooms in which they were found, but obtained no liquor.

Mrs. Farrell denied there was any trap laid for Marshal Nutt, but admitted she was employed by the state prohibition department.

Records of the state auditor show that Mrs. Farrell was paid $30 on a prohibition department voucher for services from February 1 to 6.

Other vouchers to women in 1926 include: Sue Woodruff, Columbus, $50 January 22 to 31, and Goldie Hallam Columbus, $30 February 1 to 6.

Mrs. Farrell denied Thursday that she had "framed" Marshal Nutt, but admitted she was employed by the prohibition department.

"I had a date with Marshal Nutt" she said. "I went to Westerville on a street car to meet him. Evidently the prohibition officers who were taking Deputy Propst to his home in Westerville saw us meet and followed us. I never told anyone in the department that I was going to meet Nutt."

Attorney General Crabbe expressed "grave doubt" as to the legality of using women to entrap suspects in prearranged raids.

"If the prohibition department is employing women of a doubtful character to entrap violators by inducing and assisting them to violate the law, it is my belief that the department itself is infringing on the law," Attorney General Crabbe said.

Regarding conditions in Westerville City Manager L. G. Whitney said: "Gambling and bootlegging have been going on for quite a while. I have not been able to stop them. They are no worse now, they are just better known. I have not been able to get the local police to help in the cleanup. But I am determined to clean this place up and I will bring in outside forces to do it, if necessary. The ball is rolling now."

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The engagement of Mrs. Russie Morgan and Mr. Henry Wetzel has been announced in Columbus. The wedding will take place in March. Mrs. Morgan will be better remembered here as Russie Kolterman, daughter of Mrs. Victoria M. Schoeller now residing at 344½ South High street, Columbus.

Mr. Lee Edward Southers of Greenfield, and Miss Gay Jolly, of New Holland, were married Thursday evening at 4 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage in this city by Rev. A. H. Beardsley.

MORTGAGED EARNINGS.

According to C. I. Hill of the Babson statistical organization, American business today is facing a mortgage on the purchasing power of the country to the extent of $5,000,000,000, as a result of the installment or "pay-as-you-earn" plan of business.

Addressing the National Retail Dry-goods association at New York Mr. Hill declared: "After a careful study of the situation, our organization believes that the trend of installment selling as it exists today is fundamentally unsound and in violation of the primary rules and ethics of good business and sound and sane living."

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires
By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Bellefontaine — While authorities searched for a fourth man who leaped into a stolen automobile and escaped, Charles St. Claire, 25; Jack Malone, 27 and Eddie Parker, 24 all of Toledo, were in the county jail here today suspected of burglarizing a hardware store at DeGraff Wednesday night.

Norwalk — With orders to shoot to kill if necessary police throught the state today were searching for James and Leonard Lyons, youthful brothers one of whom shot and killed Frank E. McGrath, special agent for the American Railway Express company, when McGrath sought to arrest them at Havana, near here Thursday.

Columbus — The state wide Peace Declamation contest for high school students, was heartily endorsed Friday by Vernon M. Riege, state director of education. He said he would recommend that high schools in the state give credit in English work to pupils participating in the contest, being organized by the Ohio Council of Churches.

Cambridge—Ermal Larson, 17, of near here, is in the Cambridge hospital in a critical condition as the result of two bullet wounds in his body inflicted by his father, Bert Larson, when the latter mistook his son for a robber. The shooting occurred at the Larson home where a watch was being kept for a highwayman who had held up and robbed Ermal of $9.10 Wednesday afternoon.

Cincinnati — Elizabeth Schweder, pretty 17 year old German miss whose mysterious disappearance six days ago baffled police, returned to her home Thursday, gasped that "she was not married," and fainted.

The girl was driven to her home by Forest Hull, a garage proprietor and another woman. As Curtis Schweder Elizabeth's brother, dashed for the car, Hull sped away.

"It's all my fault," Elizabeth cried hysterically when revived. The girl then mumbled incoherently.

THE SICK.

Miss Genevieve Sensenbrenner is ill of tonsillitis at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sensenbrenner, of East Mound street.

SAFE CRACKED AND BURGLARS MADE ESCAPE

Stevenson's Furniture Store Entered and $121 Taken —Carried Insurance.

The safe in the furniture store of H. G. Stevenson, West Main street was burglarized some time during the night and $121 was taken from the cash drawer.

It is thought that the store must have been entered before two o'clock for snow began to fall about that time and there are no signs of footprints in the snow. Iron workers' tools, such as hammers and cold chisels were found on the floor of the office near the safe where the marauders did their work.

Entrance was effected thru a window in the shop in the rear of the store.

After entering the store room they made their way to the office, knocked off the knob to the combination, turned the tumblers and bolts and an easy entrance was made to the strong box, which was pried open, as were also two other drawers in the safe. Checks and papers were not disturbed.

Mr. Stevenson carried burglary insurance in the Boyle & Johnson agency and his loss is fully covered by insurance.

The burglary was discovered by Daniel Ryan when he opened the store this morning at 7:30 o'clock. The police and sheriff were notified at once and an effort will be made to photograph the safe door for finger marks, in order to trace the burglars, if possible.

A THIEVES' NIGHT

With the heavy rain storm raging followed by a norther, gave thieves ample time Thursday night to get in their work as nobody was out. A house of representatives for many years, Mr. McDonald made a scientific B. Given's car which was parked in front of the Grand opera house. The car was insured against burglary in the Boyle & Johnson agency.

The car of Earl Stout, parked in front of the Memorial hall, was separated from a motometer, tools and an army blanket. The police have no clue to the thieves.

OPERATION OF BAXTER BILL IS WATCHED

Thoro Going Test is Being Made in Dayton Under Mayor A. C. McDonald.

Operation of the recently enacted Baxter bill for the relief of the tax-paying districts of the state will be watched with much interest by the officials of every city in the state and students of government, with especial attention focussed on Dayton, which, under its new mayor, Allen C. McDonald, who was a member of the house of representatives when he was chosen mayor, has adopted a program of rigid economy in taxation and a minimum expenditure of public funds.

The passage of the Baxter bill will enable the city of Dayton to fund a deficit of approximately $150,000 which existed on December 31, (before the new administration took charge) over a period of five years, and prevent an increase in taxes or assessments on property there.

The Baxter bill, it is expected, will have a thorough-going test under Mr. McDonald's administration, because of his intimate knowledge of legislation and taxation. As a member of the house of representatives for many years, Mr. McDonald made a scientific study of taxation. He attended the joint meeting of the taxation committee of the two houses in Columbus January 8, with the object of having the bill whipped into shape so as to take care of conditions in Dayton and Montgomery county. He was probably the only municipal or local officer from any section of the state in attendance at the meeting.

With the aid of the Baxter bill Dayton has entered upon a pay-as-you-go plan. Dayton has a non-partisan commission form of government with a city manager. Altho Mr. McDonald is a Republican, the city government is being administered without regard to political questions. His selection as mayor was the result of his having received the largest vote on the non-partisan ticket in the municipal election.

"The business affairs of the city of Dayton are to be conducted just as a business corporation conducts its affairs," the commission has declared. The bill for the relief of the tax paying districts was introduced in the legislature by Representative Baxter of Lima. Conditions similar to those in Dayton, however, with the wide experience of its new mayor, is expected to provide an unusually favorable background for the operation of the law and it is believed that the merits of the measure will be fully demonstrated. Other cities will no doubt profit by Dayton's experience. Later on, it is believed, all the cities of the state will send representatives to a conference at which will be discussed the operations of the Baxter act.

AMATEUR TRAP SHOOTING ASSN.
Will Stage Midwinter Shoot At Vandalia, Ohio, February 22 and 23.
Troopshooters from this section of the country will be glad to learn that the officers of the famous Central Ohio Trapshooters League are going to stage a Midwinter shoot, Monday and Tuesday, February 22nd and 23rd. This shoot will be held on the grounds of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, Vandalia, Ohio.
Midwinter shoots are held in different sections of the country each year. Ohio, the best trapshooting state in America has never held a Midwinter competition, the result being, the shooters from the Buckeye and neighboring states have to travel far at this time of the year to participate in their favorite sport.
The officers of the Central Ohio League have arranged a wonderful program. Monday, February 22nd, the feature of the program will be 100-16 yard targets and 25 pair of doubles. The 100 bird race will be known as the Midwinter Championship and will be shot classification system. Twelve beautiful trophies will be given away in this contest. The C. O. T. L. Midwinter Doubles Championship will be shot in the afternoon. This should prove to be a thriller. Three fine trophies will be given away to the three best twin busters.
Tuesday, February 23rd, will be featured by the famous C. O. T. L. Midwinter Handicap contest, 100 targets, 16 to 23 yard rise. Every shooter on the grounds will have an equal chance in this race. A beautiful trophy will be given to the high gun of each yardage, eight trophies in all. Besides the trophies $100.00 will be guaranteed the winner of this event, $50.00 to the second place and $25.00 to the third.
Prior to the Midwinter Handicap race, Tuesday morning, there will be a warm up event of 100 targets. At the conclusion of the tournament an all around trophy will be given to the shooter who makes the high score in the two championship events and the Handicap Race. If we are any judge of programs, we think this to be one of the finest ever put on by a trapshooting body.

Early Ireland
There is no certain evidence that Ireland was inhabited during the paleolithic period. It was not until about 600 B. C. that the Golds, the first invaders speaking a Celtic language, set foot in Ireland. Between 200 and 150 B. C. various Celtic and other Brythonic tribes settled in Britain and probably crossed over to Ireland. The earlier history of Ireland is largely legendary. There is a tradition that the first colony arrived in Ireland A. M. 2520, under the leadership of Partholan, who came from middle Greece.

LOANS up to $500

The average credit terms quoted on a commodity sold on the payment plan are always in favor of the seller. For example— if you pay faster than your contract provides, the seller gets the advantage. On the other hand, if you fail to pay as regularly as you should, you run the risk of losing your auto, or furniture, or piano, or sewing machine, or sweeper, or whatever it is, and all the money you have previously paid on it may be charged up against you as rent. Under the City Loan plan, you pay for the exact time you use the money and the cost is reduced with each payment. Thus it can be seen that City Loan credit terms are in favor of the borrower, with every inducement for him to pay back as fast as he can. Failure to pay, for good cause, is always given fair consideration.

SPORT TABLOIDS.
New York.—Ruby Goldstein, East Side lightweight, continued his string of recent victories by scoring a two-round knockout over Billy Pollock in a scheduled six-round go.
Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Clas Thunberg, fleet Finnish skater, bested Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid in the one-third mile event after the American had fallen just before reaching the tape.
New York.—Frank Frisch, Giant infielder, arrived here from the Florida winter baseball season. He has not signed a contract as yet, but intends to see John McGraw today.
Chicago.—Everett Scott, the most consistent shortstop of all time who a few weeks ago was released by the Washington Senators, has been signed by the White Sox. Harry Hooper has been given his unconditional release and Wee Dickie Kerr, has been sold to the San Francisco club.
The Dumb One
A husband telephoned to say that he could not get home to dinner. Late as it was, it would be much later before he had finished his business. "You poor dear," answered his wife sympathetically, "I wonder you can get anything done at all with that jazz band playing in your office."

SMUGGLING
Of Aliens Flourishing On Canadian Border.

Cleveland, Feb. 18.—(UP.)—Alien smuggling is flourishing along the Canadian border, Federal authorities declared today following the arrest of Anton Jakob, a 22-year-old Rumanian who has confessed he paid $90 to be smuggled into the United States. Jakob and two women and one other man were landed in Buffalo, N. Y., a week ago, Jakob said. Two agents of what is believed an international alien smuggling ring, were captured, together with the two women and the man. Jakob escaped. The prisoners refused to divulge operations of the supposed ring. Jakob was traced to the home of his uncle in Mansfield, O., and arrested.

MAKING OF LAWS
In 38 states of the Union the Legislatures last year passed 13,018 different laws. At that they only passed a portion of those submitted. In New York, for instance, a total of 3,186 were put into the hopper, but only 686 of them became laws. In North Carolina, however, the solons made a better batting average. Out of 1,745 measures presented 1,173 were adopted and signed by the Governor. Our national Congress makes its own record. It will probably have 30,000 bills before the roll is complete, and one third of them will be adopted. It is a busy session, indeed, when the British Parliament has 300 measures before it. The Britons depend more upon the Almighty and less upon the legislators for their relief.—Los Angeles Times.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?
"A very difficult question," the President calls the traffic casualties of the time. The figures that he cites—24,000 persons killed in a year upon the streets and highways of the country, and probably more than 500,000 injured. This means that over a period of the same length as our participation in the world war Americans are losing three-fourths as many lives on streets and roads as they lost to German bullets, and running up in addition a non-fatal casualty list thrice as great as they did abroad. "The president has asked all the governors to appoint delegates to a national safety convention to assemble in March. While we know of no formula to meet the situation he has outlined the conference may write history by focusing public attention on the national aspects of a problem made up of a multitude of incidents at street corners and cross roads. Many communities are at work seeking and applying remedies. The figures set forth in this article certainly ought to be a very convincing argument for

Whoever you are, wherever you are, you are immediately and definitely benefited when anybody buys an automobile. For the owner of that car earns more money, spends more money, does more work, enjoys life more, and means more to himself and his community than he did before. And the man who buys the car is benefited more than anyone else.

As we see it, this house is more than a purveyor of good automobiles—it is a local institution contributing to the happiness and prosperity of the community. We'd like to tell you more about it; drop in any time.

x HARTMAN THEATER. x
x x x x x x x x

The biggest thrill of many seasons in the American theater was provided late in the summer of 1924 when "What Price Glory" burst on Broadway with a report which has echoed across the continent. "What Price Glory" is the only play about the war of which men who have been in the thick of it say: "This is it!" "What Price Glory" comes to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for one week beginning Monday February 22, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

This picture of the war is revealed almost unconsciously by its authors. Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson never planned to make history with their play. Their modest intent was to tell the story—a grinning comedy, in truth—a battle between two hardboiled Marines for the favors of a peasant girl in a shell-torn corner of France.

But so alive, throbbing and hard-fisted are those characters, so vivid are the scenes, that those who have yearned to know how the war looked and felt and tasted come away from "What Price Glory" with the conviction that they now know something of the war as these men know it. Gargantuan figures they are, Flagg and Quirt. Beasts, men and gods—something of each. To know them is to see life magnified, made more beautiful, more horrible, more devilish and more divine than we, in our cramped lives, can hope to live it.

Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt, as impersonated by Louis Wolheim and William Boyd, are unforgettable. Indeed the whole company of Marines, French peasants, staff officers and camp followers is so perfectly cast that the play offers a cross section of the French front seen thru the eyes of a laughter-loving American.

"What Price Glory" was born of the experiences of Laurence Stallings on the battle fields of France. Its characters and incidents are lifted from life. Veterans of the Marine corps visit the play again and again to greet with cheers of laughter and reminiscent chuckles the whole string of characters and incidents of the story.

To the men who were over there, "What Price Glory" will recall the most acute moments of their lives. To the millions of others it has the incalculable value of satisfying a hunger to know what the World war really meant. Here it is—the grinning, brutal, heroic truth.

See it! Then—you'll know.

TRY US FOR A WANT AD

MANY ALIENS IN
U. S. ILLEGALLYLaw, if Enforced, Would Deport Many Now Established in American Life.

Washington.—If the present immigration law should be enforced strictly 2,000,000 people of foreign birth now living in the United States would be deported. This discovery is one of several startling things that have come to the attention of Harry E. Hull, the new commissioner general of immigration, since he took office on May 16. Within a very few weeks Commissioner Hull has found that the immigration service of the United States has before it one of the hardest sets of problems confronting any branch of the federal government.

Many of the 2,000,000 aliens who are here without legal right have taken root in the economic life of the country and established themselves as useful members of their communities. Some of them have been in America for twenty years or longer. The letter of the law would send them away because they would be unable, if called upon, to show satisfactory proof that they entered the country in the manner specified by rule. Many of them think that they did so enter, but the immigration authorities run across people every day who lack the proof, and officialdom is required continually to answer the baffling question of what to do with them.

No Right to Return.

Some of these questionable residents have risen to be important business men; some have won prominence in other ways. Only the other day a man classed as a "big man" in the business circles of an Eastern city sought permission to go abroad and return. He had been in the country about fifteen years. Investigation disclosed that, like many another newcomer, he had changed his occupation after getting here. He came on a visit and then went into business. To his astonishment he found himself virtually a man without a country when a re-entry certificate was withheld from him.

Many other cases of the sort crop up daily at Washington; cases of people who came here as students or tourists and afterward changed their status without duly notifying the authorities—a thing strictly against the law. A large part of the doubtful 2,000,000 drifted across the Canadian border and grew up here. Among them are many people from our first-cousin countries of Great Britain and Ireland; they are established in great numbers in upper New York state and in New England. They have dwelt so long in their adopted land that they have become well absorbed and are regarded by their neighbors as bona-fide citizens.

They regard themselves in that light, indeed, but when they try to prove their right to be so looked upon they find that they have failed to provide themselves with proper records, or that they have lost what records they had. If they leave the country they must run the risk of returning outside the ever-full quotas from their native lands and of being rejected at the gate. Consuls in Europe, who have authority over the issuing of passports, have learned from experience to be slow in granting papers in excess of the quotas and without the necessary certificates brought by the applicants from this side of the ocean.

Thousands Here Illegally.

This problem of the 2,000,000 finds its origin in past practices. The first restriction law of 1921 reversed entirely the country's open-door policy in immigration. Naturally this about face created a situation that could not be foreseen. The problem involves more people than any other now before the immigration service, and around it most of the other problems of the service revolve in some way.

According to the 1920 census the number of aliens in the United States over twenty-one years of age then was 4,522,350. The number of aliens under twenty-one years of age was 876,248. The number of aliens over twenty-one years of age who had taken out first papers was 1,198,588. The number under twenty-one who had taken out first papers was 24,902.

The total foreign-born population of the United States was 13,920,692. Of the foregoing those naturalized were 6,493,088. A total of 1,223,400 have declared their intention to become citizens, and all told those who are still aliens are 5,398,605. A total of 805,506 may or may not have been declarants. The estimate of 2,000,000 unable to prove their entry was made by officials after examining the manner in which records have been presented.

The practice of the immigration authorities when an application to go abroad is made is to ask that the applicant prove legal entry. When he is unable to do so the officials are unable to certify thereto and to give him the permit to re-enter. If he goes abroad it is at the great risk of staying there. The situation has been found to work hardships, one of the worst being the separating of families. Some men have gone abroad thinking the necessary card would follow them. Meanwhile the bureau has been unable, after searching the records, to discover the proof and the card has been held up.

SUSPECTS KILLED F. E. M'GRATH

Norwalk —Defying a barrage laid down by deputies, two youthful bandit suspects shot and killed F. E. Mc-Grath, of Cleveland, an investigator for the American Railway Express company at Havana, eight miles south west of here Thursday and escaped in a stolen automobile.

The slayers said to James Lyons and a younger brother, were wanted for the robbery of the express company's office at Norwalk two weeks ago.

Writings on Dietetics

Diet was studied in very ancient times. Hippocrates, the famous Greek physician, was interested in dietetics.
Maimonides, the great Jewish physician, wrote a series of letters on dietetics for the son of his patron Saladin. These are probably among the earliest writings on the subject.

AMUSEMENTS

New York—1850, the day of the horseless carriage, brownstone front and cobble stone street—that's the scene of the Sidney Olcott-Paramount production, "Not So Long Ago," at the Met theater.

"Not So Long Ago" is a captivating love story of city life in its most picturesque and interesting period—a living document of old New York filled with heart throbs and quaint charm, adapted for the screen by Violet Clark from the Broadway stage hit of the same name by Arthur Richman.

Betty Bronson and Ricardo Cortez are featured in the principal roles. In all justice to Betty Dover (Miss Bronson), it might be said here that her fibbing is prompted by an imaginative mind handed down to her by an inventive father.

Employed as a seamstress in the home of the wealthy Ballards, Betty soon imagines that the scion of the house, Billy (Cortez) is desperately in love with her. With this love situation as a basis, all kinds of trouble break loose for the romantic and dreamy Betty. Social cast and money play important parts in trying to wreck the girl's ambitions, but she triumphs in the end.

"Not So Long Ago" has been screened with a fine understanding of the styles and customs of the period. You'll long remember the old-fashioned fire engine, the old-fashioned ball scene, the "bicycle for two," the horseless carriage, Betty Bronson's characterization, scenes of the old New York, the love romance, the fight between Cortez and Laurence Wheat who heads the supporting cast, the snobbish mother, and a scene that has everything—comedy, pathos, thrills and a real climax. Briefly the situation is this: Larry Wheat makes a wager that he can beat the horseless carriage down Fifth avenue. If he wins, Betty Bronson has promised to marry him. The street is roped off and the race starts. Just as the horseless carriage is about to cross the finish line a winner, the boiler explodes and with it apparently are shattered all of Betty's father's hopes for success. Subsequent events, however, prove otherwise.

Made by the director of "Little Old New York," "Not So Long Ago," is way up and beyond anything he's ever done before.

Other big names in the strong supporting cast are Edwards Davis, Julia Swayne Gordon, Dan Crimmins, as inventor and Jacqueline Gadson.

Check on Oratory

At a recent conference a novel plan was adopted for restricting the length of speeches according to their interest. Each of the delegates was armed with a large card, red on one side, white on the other. After each speech had been going for some minutes delegates would begin to hold up their cards, red side toward the chairman. This was a sign that they were bored with the speech. Others who wished to hear more would turn the white side toward the chairman, who was thus able to see at a glance whether the audience wanted the speech to continue or not.

When the number of red cards exceeded the number of white cards he would tactfully intimate to the speaker that time was up.

When Red Raspberry
Plants Are Planted

Roots Should Be Extended
Along the Rows.

The red raspberry develops new plants from its roots, which extend horizontally in all directions from the parent plant only a few inches below the surface of the ground. When a garden tool or an insect breaks or injures these roots they promptly send up new shoots which soon develop into new plants.

If these are wanted for a new bed they may be dug up and transplanted; if not, they should be pulled up rather than cut off. Pulling generally breaks the shoot's connection with the horizontal root and lessens the likelihood of new plants at that point. Cutting leaves part of the shoot in the soil and soon new shoots develop from the buds on it.

When red raspberry plants are planted their roots should be extended in the direction of the rows so the new shoots that develop may be more or less in line. As new plants appear it is an advantage to pull up the puny ones in the row and all others out of the line, unless these are needed for transplanting. This helps to make cultivation easier, the fruit larger and of finer quality.

Blackcap and purple raspberries do not develop new plants by this method, but by making the tips of their young shoots and branches bend to the ground and take root. When once planted new stems develop in a very limited space around the stem of the original plant set. They never give trouble with suckers.

To prevent their forming new plants the tips of the new shoots need only be prevented from taking root during late summer and fall.—M. G. Kains, in the Country Gentleman.

Paying Stand of Clover
Gained by Broadcasting

A good stand of clover may usually be obtained on land that is not deficient in lime by broadcasting the seed in March when the ground is honeycombed by freezing. If the seed is sown later when it will not be covered by freezing, it is safest to cover it by a very light harrowing.

In seeding tests at the Ohio station the seven-year average yield of clover seeded about March 15, when the ground was honeycombed was 1.61 tons of hay per acre. Clover seeded in the latter part of April when the ground was in good working condition, but without covering the seed gave an average yield of 1.58 tons per acre; half the amount of seed drilled in with a grass seed drill on the same date gave 1.63 tons; the smaller amount of seed broadcast and covered by a light harrowing gave 1.58 tons.

The station agronomists do not recommend sowing less than 8 to 11 pounds of clover seed per acre under the best of conditions for covering the seed and on limed or limestone soil.

Use of Milk Machine Is
Extending Very Rapidly

The use of milking machines is extending rapidly. Sanitation is a consideration of first importance in their employment. They must be thoroughly washed and sterilized if a clean milk of low bacterial count is to be produced. Recent trials have shown the hot-water treatment to be as satisfactory as any. The life of good quality rubber is not materially shortened by this method. After each milking, the machine is thoroughly washed and the teat cups and rubber tubing are placed in clean, cold water until just before the next milking, when they are placed in hot water 160 degrees to 165 degrees Fahrenheit and then allowed to cool.

Skunk Is a Particular
Enemy of the Honeybee

If the trappers should entirely exterminate the tribe of skunks this winter, there would be no regret among beekeepers. The skunk is a particular enemy of bees, because he has cultivated his appetite for both bees and honey. During the night the skunk will creep quietly to the beehive and tap on the front of it with his paw until the bees come crawling out. As they come out the skunk gathers them in with his paw and his tongue, apparently regarding their stingers as only a delightful addition to the flavor.

FARM NOTES

Carpenter work on the farm always goes better with good tools.

One gopher is capable of throwing up two hundred or more mounds during six weeks.

The deeper and rougher the kernel the lower its degree of maturity; the higher its moisture content the greater the injury by freezes.

Clover or alfalfa hay once a day, corn fodder at noon, and bean pods at night, make an excellent roughage ration for breeding ewes during the winter season.

Winter is here and farm animals should be kept comfortable—that is, not hungry or cold or excited, or standing in an uncomfortable position or sleeping in an uncomfortable bed.

FATAL ENDING
OF MARDI GRAS

New Orleans, La., Feb. 17.—(UP.)—Three deaths, 100 persons treated for injuries sustained in accidents and fights and 400 arrests, brought the Mardi Gras festival to a noisy conclusion police records revealed today.

Night recorder's court continued in session until early morning adjourning for breakfast, after disposing of a majority of the drunk and disorderly cases.

The three dead are negroes; one a bandit who was shot to death by police. Two white men, Charles Oberline, a participant in the Zulu King's pageant and Wm. N. Johnson, a visitor of Hazelhurst, Miss., were stabbed by drunken negroes.

Surgeons Make Record
in Heart Treatment

In one of London's morning newspapers a surgeon tells of an operation performed for the first time on the human heart. The patient, a young girl, had suffered for four years from mitral stenosis, or the gradual closing of one of the four valves of the heart. As treatment seemed of no avail, it was decided that an operation was necessary. A large flap of skin and muscle over the girl's heart was laid back and the ribs over the cardiac area were removed. The pericardium, or sac containing the heart, was then exposed to view, and the heart itself could be seen pulsating at the rate of 128 beats to the minute. The sac was opened, an incision was made in the auricle (one of the four chambers of the heart) and the gloved finger of the surgeon was inserted as a plug to stop the immediate fountain of blood. After examination it was decided not to cut the valve as had been intended but merely to dilate it with the finger. This the surgeon did slowly and with infinite care and without mishap. The pericardium closed, the ribs, muscles and the skin were replaced layer by layer. During it all the heart maintained a nearly normal pulsation, which became wholly normal when the chest was closed. The patient made a speedy recovery and when last heard of was perfectly well.

Official Fog Signals

Under the control of the United States government there are about 100,000 fog signals, of which 3,000 are lighted. They include gongs, bells, whistles of compressed air, trumpets, horns and flashlights. Gongs have been found the least effective so far as concerns the carrying qualities of sound instruments, bells being heard much farther under all circumstances.

PLAN TO HARNESS TIDE FOR POWER

American Engineers Study Feasibility of Bay of Fundy Project.

St. John, N. B.—Much interest has been aroused throughout the Canadian maritime provinces, particularly in New Brunswick, by the proposed project to generate between 500,000 and 750,000 electrical horse power by harnessing the famous tides of the Bay of Fundy in two inlets near Eastport, Me. American hydraulic engineers investigating the feasibility of the project, pronounced it entirely practical from an engineering standpoint, adding that it presented one of the most promising developments in the electrical world in a decade.

The project is being sponsored by Dexter P. Cooper, American capitalist, who spent several weeks here recently in its interest. Mr. Cooper explained to members of the New Brunswick government at the time, that as soon as authority to begin with construction was obtained from Maine, application to proceed with the work would be made to the provincial and Dominion governments, as well as to the international joint waterways commission. Titles to certain lands on the New Brunswick side of the St. Croix river already have been searched for at the crown lands office in Fredericton, the provincial capital. A state-wide referendum is to be taken in Maine to decide whether the sale of power will be permitted outside the state, provided the project materializes.

Fix Cost at $75,000,000.

The cost of harnessing the tides, Mr. Cooper estimates at $75,000,000, the financing of which has already been assured. It would require at least five years before actual power could be supplied after the work was started, Mr. Cooper said. When completed, however, a maximum of 750,000 horse power could be produced annually, enough and to spare for the entire New England states. Electric power at hitherto unheard-of rates would be available all over the province, he declared, and, according to engineers, could be transmitted as far west as Boston, Mass.

The Bay of Fundy is noted for having the highest and strongest tides in the world. These are caused by the peculiar submarine topography and the wedge shape of the adjacent shores. At St. John the tides rise 25 feet, causing on the lower St. John river the only natural phenomenon of its kind in existence, a reversible waterfall: that is to say, when the tide is coming in, the falls, which are some forty feet high, "drop" upstream, and when the tide is going out they "drop" downstream. At the end of the Bay of Fundy, between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the tide is the highest on earth, at slack water measuring between 60 and 70 feet. At Moncton, on Chignecto bay, the incoming tide travels with such great velocity that it attains a "bore" of six feet.

Coast Vessels' Graveyard.

Its fierce tides and storms, treacherous reefs and shoals, steep rocky coast and frequent heavy fogs make the Bay of Fundy one of the most perilous passages known to mariners. Yearly, dozens of coasting vessels and fishing schooners bound for the Grand Banks of Newfoundland are lost here. The early French explorers and missionaries have described its fury and turbulence when in tempest, and it was known to be the bane of the simple Acadian peasants who peopled its pleasant shores some two centuries ago. Tales of havoc wrought by its great winds and tide-rips still live in the legendary lore of the descendants of the Miqmac and Maliseet Indians found throughout this part of Canada today.

Plans and specifications for utilizing the potential power of the Fundy tides have been completed. The two inlets which have been selected are known as Passamaquoddy bay and Cobscook bay. The first is designated as the upper pool and the second as the lower pool. Both inlets are V-shaped, with their narrow necks, almost stopped by small island groups, meeting at Eastport.

At the mouth of the upper pool, which contains about 100 square miles of water, the plans call for the erection of a sea wall 4,000 feet long and 70 feet high. The wall is to be provided with 33 sluice gates. The mouth of the lower pool, containing 50 square miles of water, is to be closed by a similar gate, 2,400 feet long.

Between the two pools a separating wall 3,600 feet in length will be built on which power plants are to be located.

Theory of Operation.

The theory is this: The gates of the upper pool are to be opened only during flood tides, while the gates of the lower pool are to be opened only during ebb tides. This, according to the plans, will keep a supply of water in the upper pool, while the lower pool will be constantly emptied. The fall of the water from the upper pool through the turbines into the lower pool will create a continuous downfall regardless of whether the tides are falling or rising.

Several years ago when the idea of harnessing the tides was first promulgated, it was received with derision. To the lay mind it appeared altogether too visionary. The magnitude of the project as then set down was over

WASHINGTON SPECIALS

Washington, Feb. 18.—(UP.)—Representative Swing, California, today asked the state department to negotiate a treaty with Mexico establishing a fifty mile zone along the border in Mexico in which all saloons and other questionable resorts will be prohibited. Swing also asked Secretary Kellogg if it would be possible to close the Mexican border during certain hours of the night. He was referred to the treasury department on this proposal.

The Senate today asked the United States tariff commission to investigate advisability of raising the tariff on cream and milk. A resolution carrying the suggestion introduced by Senator Lenroot, Wis., Republican, was adopted without objection. The commission has been investigating butter costs for the last two years and the new investigation would be conducted in connection with the old one.

The war department's inquiry into alleged "disloyalty" of air service officers ended today with a decision to reprimand Major H. H. Arnold and Major H. A. Darque, of air service headquarters here for alleged attempts to influence legislation before conference in a manner objectionable to the department. Capt. John Montgomery, reserve officer, was found to be chiefly responsible for the objectionable activities, but no action is contemplated against him because he is not on active duty. Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of air service, who conducted the investigation on orders of Secy. of War Davis, denied in a formal statement that the inquiry was aimed indirectly against him because of department displeasure over his congressional testimony favoring a separate air corps.

THEN AND NOW

The old-fashioned idea was that everyone ought to open his windows wide in the morning to air the room in which he had been sleeping, and young housewives were taught the importance of a thorough airing of their houses every morning. Now, of course, the thing we do when we get up in the morning is to close the windows that have been open in our bedrooms all night. The open bedroom windows usually manage to air the entire house and to cool it so that the first thing we think of in the morning is to try and get the house back to a comfortable temperature. In the houses of well-bred people even there used to be a staleness about the atmosphere that is unknown in any house, save those of the most ignorant people nowadays.

Topsy-Turvy

Eleanor, age three, and her older sister went to spend the night with a small cousin. They romped and played through the evening, and, before they had hardly begun, bedtime came. The fun of all sleeping in the same bed, however, held an attraction. The bed was not wide enough for all three to lie in it, so aunt tucked them in all lying the other way—crosswise. Next day Eleanor's mother came and at once was told of the great experience. "Oh, mother," said Eleanor, "we slept wrong side out last night."

FOLLOW THE CROWD

Some firms advertise by mailing circulars. Pickaway County has about 5,000 homes. Circulars mailed to each home costs the sender about $150.

Money spent in this manner must be added to the overhead expense and the customer pays that expense.

The Circleville Welding Co.'s policy has always been to reduce expense and give the customer the benefit of the saving. Having been in business for the past six years we need no introduction. All the leading industries of Circleville and the many surrounding towns have their work done here. Why not you. We don't do a cheap job merely to meet competition but do you a real 100 percent job at as a reasonable price as possible.

Welding and brazing is our business, nothing else. Bring your next job here and compare the difference in workmanship.

Ancient Anesthetics

Anesthetics in surgical operations were used thousands of years ago. We are told by one high authority. They commonly used vegetable drugs such as morphine and hashish and alcohol.

Nearest to Europe

Portland (Maine) is the nearest United States port to Europe.

Printed Silk Is Used for Two-Piece Frock

This stunning two-piece frock is made of printed silk, with plaited skirt and a belt with a buckle. It can be worn with high or low neck.

Cameo Pins, Jet Dinner Rings, Pearl Necklaces

Cameo pins in antique jeweled settings and frames emphasize the vogue for the ornate and elaborate in jewelry. When a small cameo is used, the frame is rather large and shows to advantage in vari-colored stones. In the large cameo pins the frames are narrow and usually dotted with stones of a single color. All sorts of queer shapes with fancy curves and oddly cut-off corners are exploited as well as the conventional oval and round shapes.

Jet dinner rings in silver and white gold seem to be replacing those of onyx. They may now be had either in prong or bordered settings. A border of tiny rhinestones by contrast enhances the shiny jet center stone, whereas inlaid cameo designs furnish the detail for those with prong settings.

A new version of the pearl necklace may be seen in a long open strand, made up of double sections of graduated pearls. These are joined together by a large baroque pearl. Both of the loose ends of these necklaces are finished with pendants of one, two or even three separate strands of finer pearls, interspersed with graduated baroque pearls and a similar pearl drop. These necklaces may be worn tied in knot fashion in front, wound about the neck or looped with the ends hanging at the back.

Oriental Crepes, Silks for Tailored Lingerie

The oriental silks and the crepes of both French and American make are particularly suitable for the smart "tailored" lingerie. Night dresses of this type are cut as severely plain as a mandarin coat, with square neck, short sleeves or no sleeves, and a band stitched flat along the edge. Slips of these firm Chinese silks are of inexpressible comfort and may be worn with many different gowns and tunic frocks, a protection to the undermost garments and a foundation for the dress. They are even more successful for pajamas, and some of the most chic little night "suits"—jacket and trousers—are shown in these imported eastern silks, in plain colors and in figures. The colors are possibilities for artistic design and afford many charming variants, some of them very picturesque. A silk of one color is trimmed with flat bands of another and lovely bits of oriental needlework are introduced. The opportunity to elaborate these suits and separate garments is practically without limit.

New Cottons and Silk Muslins on Spring Card

As the styles for southern resort wear and the early spring styles are brought out, some delightful models are shown in new cottons and silk muslins. There are pretty stripes, checks and open "basket" weaves and fancy patterns of the weight of mousseline de soie. Some of the prominent shops on this side are reviving interest in the fresh, dainty Irish dainties. A quaint, inviting "nightie" of white Irish dimity in a small check is trimmed with Irish lace run with lavender taffeta ribbon. Some sweet little step-ins are made of square mesh open-check muslin, of silk and cotton, in a pale shade of apricot, trimmed with yellow valenciennes lace. In these sheer materials many beautiful colors are shown, some in delicate flower and fruit shades. Peach, apricot, cyclamen green, tangerine, saffron and Chinese blue are some of the popular tints.

Beaded Bags

Few women set out for the land of the royal, and the itching palms, located south of the frost belt, without purchasing one of the new large bags made of tiny beads. These bags are as soft and flexible as silk itself and are developed in charming color designs.

YOUNGSTERS OF PIG CLUB ENTERTAINED

Sixty Girls and Boys Were
Guests of Rotary Club—
Dr. Benson, the Speaker.

One of the most interesting sessions in the history of the Circleville Rotary club was that of Thursday noon when the members entertained to dinner sixty boys and girls of the county who had joined the various Pig clubs and who had exhibited their pigs at the Pumpkin Show last fall.

The Rotarians have taken a lively interest in the girls and boys and their work and the different members visited many of the youngsters while the process of raising of the pigs was being promoted. The result was a fine showing at the annual Pumpkin Show and in order to show their appreciation they were banqueted in the social rooms of the First Methodist Episcopal church. The menu was slaw, roast beef, mashed potatoes, gravy, hot rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake. The dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of the church.

Sixty girls and boys, the Rotarians and other guests, a total of 131, thoroughly enjoyed the meal and the association and all felt amply repaid for any expenditures of time and money in the satisfaction that came to them thru the consciousness of the performance of a worthy deed.

The affair was in charge of C. R. Barnhart, chairman of Boys' work and the welcome address was delivered by Judge E. A. Brown, who expressed the pleasure of the club in being honored by having their youthful friends as guests.

The speaker of the day was Rev. John G. Benson, superintendent of the White Cross hospital, Columbus, whose address was wholesome, entertaining and instructive.

Dr. Benson is a forceful speaker, never at a loss for the proper words and his talk abounded in significant truths. He agreed that it is a commendable thing to raise thoroughbred pigs, cows, horses, etc., but emphasized the fact that it is vastly more important that boys and girls be reared in the right way, that they be taught the value of clean bodies, clean minds and lofty ideals.

As President Neuding said, Dr. Benson not only gave a splendid talk to the girls and boys, but there was much in it for the benefit and profit of those of more mature years.

The music for the occasion was furnished by the Blenn Bales orchestra composed of himself, Ralph Barnhart, Reber Bell, Dorwin Dumm and Mrs. Annette Conyers.
